

ACML 2012 – Call for Sponsors

A leading machine learning conference in Asia-Pacific

The Asian Conference on Machine Learning (ACML) is an international conference in the area of machine learning. It aims at providing a leading international forum for researchers in Machine Learning and related fields to share their new ideas and achievements.

ACML 2012 would be held in Singapore on the 4-6 November 2012. The strategic location of Singapore would make ACML an attractive conference to attend in 2012. It would attract researchers, academics, and industry participants not only from Asia but also from around the world. We expect to have more than 100 participants.

ACML 2012 program would include keynote speeches by renowned researchers, tutorials on various aspects of machine learning, research paper presentations, and poster presentations. The conference proceedings would be published by JMLR Workshop and Conference Proceedings. The invited keynote speakers for ACML 2012 are James Rehg (Georgia Tech), Dale Schuurmans (University of Alberta), and Bob Williamson (Australian National University and NICTA).

More information about the conference can be found at <http://acml12.comp.nus.edu.sg/>.

Sponsorship opportunities

ACML series of conferences have been supported by various institutions. ACML 2011 receives sponsorships from various institutions including: National Science Council, Taiwan, AFOSR, AOARD, Academia Sinica and others. Following the success of the previous events, we, the organizers of ACML 2012, are currently looking for sponsors. Sponsors would have the opportunity to set up exhibition booths to promote their products and reach out to the academic community and other participants of the conference, distribute promotional materials, and have their institutions logos be printed in the conference website and materials. The following are the various sponsorship categories along with the detailed benefits of being a sponsor:
